Most of these interruptions could have been prevented had planting been done with an eye on

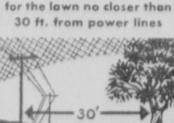

Two varieties of trees-Chinese Elm and Silver Maple -- accounted for the large majority of power fine damage in storm areas. We advise against planting these trees.

So enthusiastically that the highly conservative Pie Traynor, for the first time in more than 20 years, picks the Buccaneers to

But I like the Pirates big this trip, so am climbing out on the limb. I like them because I am convinced Kluszewski is back with both feet. Alternating him with Dick Stuart gives the club a tremendous left and right punch at first base and in the dugout. Switching Bill Virdon and Roman Mejias gives Murtaugh a comparable deal in center field."

The brightest news from this furthermost post on Florida's west coast is that Kluszewski didn't have a slipped disk in his spine after all. It is now believed that Big Klu's broad back was only strained and healed properly while he largely confined his activities to pinch-hitting in 1958.

When doctors could find nothing in particular but assured him that the condition would not get any worse, a friend on the Pro-All-Star team for two of the season and the loss was Micheletti, rf. advised him not to be afraid to swing. This he wasn't afraid to do seasons shortly after arriving at Terry Park on the pretty bank of the Loxahatchie River and the result has been most gratifying.

If Kluszewski is sound again and can get back to anything approaching his 40-49-47-35 home run output for the Redlegs from 1953 through '56, the powerful Pole would add a lot of swish and swashbuckling to the Pirates who hopped from seventh to second last season and missed taking the entire pot by no more than eight

The Pirates will be joined by a third thumping first baseman when 6-3, 205-pound R. C. Stevens finishes six month of military training on May 1. Stevens, a right-hand hitter, was formidable enough to start the season with the parent outfit a year ago, went to Salt Lake when Stuart was brought in

Don Hoak doesn't hurt the attack and jail cell rounds out a superior infield at third base. Smoky Burgess plugs the soft spot that was left in the batting order by the catcher.

Harvey Haddix improves the pitching staff. Pie Traynor may have something. The handicappers could do charge, worse than go along with him in picking the Pirates.

have the look of the wide open spaces. It will have more western representatives than any in history, and the East and South will have proportionately

The 1960 census will force the change. The new figures won't be translated into political realignments quick enough to affect the 1960 presidential setup. But thereafter new patterns of power will take shape.

As was true after the 1950 census, California will be the big gainer. Census estimates indicate that California, growing steadily and seemingly destined to be the nation's most populous state one day, will jump from its present 30 to 37 seats.

The relative decline of New York will reduce its House total from today's 43 to 40. Another decade could easily close this narrowing gap between New York and California.

Pennsylvania, long accustomed to riding close to the top in the population lists, also is slipping relatively

The 1962 Congress will begin to and probably will drop from a present 30 seats to 27.

> A likely loss of one seat in Maine and two in Massachusetts will further chip away at eastern representation.

Gains of four in Florida and two in Texas are expected to be more than offset in the South and border territory by losses totaling seven in Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and West Virginia.

Already well noted is the western pickup of the one Alaska seat and a projected two for Hawaii. Oregon and Washington, previous gainers, evidently will just hold even this time.

Certainly with these changes there will be shifts in tone and emphasis in Congress, probably toward the liberal side. But that prospect may be a bit deceptive. Western representatives may turn out to be quite selective in their advocacy of liberal issues.

Whatever their bent may be in 1962 and after, no one questions that in terms of sheer political power they will be riding toward the crest. The time may not be too distant when they will dominate that crest.
